Plant Them Now for Your Pleasure Next Spring

A Reference Book for Fall Garden Planting

Much of the recent increase in gardening is due to the development and introduction of a host of new more colorful, larger and stronger bulb and plant varieties. We have endeavored in this our annual fall catalog, to offer those most outstanding, yet including many of the old favorites.

A beautiful garden is not necessarily a costly one. It is dependent on a judicious use of plants and shrubs, careful placing of colorful bulbs in just the right spots and, of course, the selection of good varieties of the best quality.

SUPERIOR RESULTS FROM SUPERIOR STOCK

Whether your plans call for only a few items for the garden, bulbs for indoor growing during the winter or an extensive planting, you can depend on H. & O. quality and service. Our bulbs are carefully selected, thoroughly ripened stock of the best planting size; our perennials and shrubs, grown in our own nurseries, strong and vigorous — well suited to northern climates.

American Grown Tulip Bulbs

The assertion that American-grown Tulip bulbs are inferior to Holland-grown bulbs needs to be refuted because of its very apparent inaccuracy. It has been stated that their quality has proved to be inferior after careful tests. We cannot agree with this statement because we have been testing and growing bulbs produced in this country for several years, and on the whole have found them producing fully equal to those from imported bulbs. It is true that they showed a tendency to flower a little later, which was probably due to an imperfect curing process that bulbs are put through after being dug. We have even grown the same variety of bulbs side by side as a test, under identical conditions, where the American-grown bulbs produced flowers with better substance and lasted longer.

In the case of American-grown Daffodils, particularly those grown in the Pacific Northwest, these have proven so vastly superior to the imported bulbs that even at a much higher cost of production, American bulbs are preferred because of their larger and finer flowers.

While many of the newer kinds of tulips have not been grown commercially in America there is quite a collection of the good old standard kinds available in limited quantities, and we have succeeded in acquiring a very representative list of these from reliable American growers, in whom we have complete confidence.

We can unhesitatingly recommend them to our customers.

American Grown Tulips

We offer herewith what we believe to be the largest and best list of Tulip bulbs in America this season. It comprises several classes, Darwins, Cottage and Breeders, all of which are preferred for outdoor planting. Among them will be found many old favorites, good old standard varieties, and a few kinds not so well known, but which are equally desirable.

They are all TOP SIZE bulbs that we feel will prove most satisfactory. The quantity available in some instances is quite limited, and we suggest that when ordering customers indicate a second preference, as we will not substitute unless authorized to do so.

Narcissi and Daffodils

The genus Narcissi comprises a large family of varied species of bulbous plants. They are related to, and botanically belong to the Amaryllidaceae genera, but distinct from the commoner form of these.

The name Narcissi, or Narcissus, comes down to us from mythology, and was the name given a wild flower belonging to this species, and from which has

DAFFODILS ARE HARDY

There has been much neglect in the use and general planting of these beautiful spring flowers, no doubt due to the erroneous impression that they are not entirely hardy. This is not the fact, however, as Daffodils are among the hardiest of bulb flowers, fully as hardy as Tulips, and better suited to severe climatic conditions than any other of the bulbous flowers. Strong, robust bulbs are essential in order to get best results, and satisfactory results should not be expected from cheap, undersized and inferior bulbs.

DAFFODILS MULTIPLY RAPIDLY

The so-termed double nose (D. N.) and larger (mother) bulbs will produce two, three and often more flowers the first season, and if left in the ground will multiply rapidly from year to year, producing an increasing number of flowers each season.

been developed through the centuries the many beautiful types of flowers we now know by this name.

Through common usage the large trumpet varieties are generally referred to as "Daffodils," the short-cupped kinds are usually termed "Jonquils," and the white and cluster-flowered are just "Narcissi" without further distinction.

DAFFODIL TYPES AND CLASSES

There are innumerable types and classes of Daffodils, which are generally classified according to the size of the trumpet, cup or crown in proportion to the perianth segments, while some kinds derive their classification from their parentage. Under each heading will be found a brief description of the characteristics of the type.

Yellow Trumpets

The trumpet is as long, or longer than the perianth segments. Trumpet and segments usually vary from each other in the yellow shades, but does not include white.

Aerolite—A large beautifully proportioned golden-yellow flower, without any harsh tones, and that gives an impression of gracefulness despite its large size. Perianth deep primrose-yellow, and a pure golden-yellow trumpet. Perianth petals very broad and rounded ----- Doz. $1.60; 100 $11.00

Alasnam—Very broad, deeply frilled and fluted trumpet of pure deep yellow, with the perianth a shade lighter. A massive flower that faces upward. Has great substance and keeping qualities. Each 30c; Doz. $2.50; 100 $17.00

Ben Hur—A glorious "loud speaker" trumpet, deeply frilled of pure Roman gold, 2½ inches across at the mouth. In spite of its immense size the whole flower is finely proportioned, and one of the very best of the new giant trumpets ----- Each 60c; Doz. $5.75

Cleopatra—A splendid flower that has won many awards and is well known everywhere. Lemon-yellow perianth overlapping petals, trumpet light yellow. Very late. Doz. $1.60; 100 $11.00

Diotima—Considered by many experts as the very best of the new super-giant yellow trumpets. Despite its huge size (perianth being from five to six inches across) the whole flower is beautifully proportioned and is carried gracefully on two flat tapering stems. Entirely free from the amaryllis-like stiffness of many of the giant trumpets. The broad overlapping petals form a star-shaped perianth of medium deep primrose with trumpet somewhat deeper in color. Undoubtedly one of the top-notchers for many years to come.

Each 90c; Doz. $9.50

Emperor—Large golden-yellow trumpet, deep primrose-yellow perianth. Very large flower with great substance. One of the best for the garden ----- Doz. $1.40; 100 $8.00

Doz. $1.60; 100 $11.00

Golden Harvest—Large, deep golden-yellow trumpet, with broad overlapping, rich golden-yellow segment petals. This is another of the sensational new giant yellow trumpets. Early flowering.

Each 60c; Doz. $6.00

Lilies

"The Madonna Lily" (Lilium Candidum)

These wonderfully lovely lilies with their delightfully fragrant, pure white flowers are universal favorites everywhere, and invaluable for the garden.

Their flowering season (June 20th to July 10th) is approximately the same as Delphiniums, and grouped with these, create one of the prettiest pictures imaginable.

Plant in groups of several bulbs, about four inches below the surface to top of bulb, (lay bulb on side) in soil that is well drained. Planting early is desirable in order that they make considerable root growth before cold weather comes. A covering of four to six inches of marsh hay or leaves before severe cold weather sets in is recommended.

AMERICAN-GROWN BULBS

We have always considered the American home-grown Madonna Lily bulbs superior to those imported, but because of their scarcity have never been able to secure enough to supply the demand. Because of the war no French-grown bulbs will be available this year, but we have been fortunate in securing some very choice home-grown bulbs, but in a limited quantity, however, that we offer here.

First Size bulbs	-----	Each 35c; Doz. $3.50; 100 $28.50

Largest flowering bulbs, 11-13 inch	-----	Each 55c; Doz. $5.50; 100 $42.00

VARIOUS LILIES

Many of these Lilies are not ready until late in fall, and for garden planting it is suggested that ground in which they are to be planted be given a covering to prevent the soil from freezing too hard. The bulbs may then be planted much later, and the covering replaced.

Evergreens - For All-Year Around Beauty

EVERGREENS are the aristocrats of the plant world. They give dignity and charm to the home grounds.

In winter and summer alike Evergreens will bring freshness and beauty right into the yard about your home.

EVERGREENS grow naturally in our northern soils and climate. They are, therefore, particularly appropriate and well suited for use in the landscape plantings about our homes throughout this Northwest.

At the Park Nurseries the Evergreens are given particular attention to develop their full beauty and symmetrical growth. They are dug with solid root balls so that they can be moved without loss of vitality.
